Preliminaries

AIT-CeTT "Centre for Engineering and Technology Transfer", hereafter called "CeTT", respects and protects the confidentiality of the persons using the electronic pages of the web site of CeTT (hereafter called "Site"). According to this document, hereafter called "Privacy Policy", personal identifying information will never be disclosed to third parties without your prior authorization.

Cookies

Upon your first visit to the Site, CeTT saves a "cookie" in your computer. A cookie is a small data file that identifies you and nobody else but you. We use cookies to improve the quality of our services and to better analyze our users base. To do so, CeTT records the user's preferences in these cookies and analyze their behavior during their query. CeTT will never communicate the contain of this cookies to third parties except for legal demand such as search warrant, summons, legal decision, etc.

In their configuration by default, most browsers accept the cookies. You can modify this configuration and refuse all the cookies or ask for the display of a message each time a cookie is sent by a site (with possibility of choice YES/NO). However you must realize that, by refusing the cookies, you obstruct the execution of some of the Site functions..

Information collected by CeTT using Cookies

CeTT never collects personal information (name, E-mail) unless you are requested to deliver them with your full consent. At each query, CeTT only collects and records technical information such as date and time, Web browser, language, and IP address. This information is only used to confirm our data base and to improve the query services proposed to our users. For instance CeTT will use your IP address or the language to decide which language to use on the screen.

Links with other sites

The sites referenced as links by the Site are developed by societies or persons that CeTT does not control at all. Consequently these sites may put their own cookies in the computers of persons using the Site and collect (or ask) personal data.

Distribution of your informations

In some cases, CeTT may share your personal data with advertisers, partners, sponsors, and some other third parties. However, this disclosure only concerns global and general information. We contract not to publish any information allowing your identification unless we have your consent. Finally, you must be aware that we are obliged to reveal your personal information for legal demand such as search warrant, summons, legal decision, etc.

Your consent - Updating Privacy Policy

By using the Site and visiting our Web site, you accept CeTT to collect and use your own information, according to the terms above mentioned as well as in our conditions of use. CeTT may decide to modify this Privacy Policy according to the need. Each modification is published on this page so that, at any time, you can be informed of the current condition concerning collection, use and distribution of your own personal information.

For a particular collaboration, CeTT suggests to sign a non disclosure agreement with each partner.
